About Lifts

We all know that the share of soil surface on our mother earth is only 1/3 of its total area. So in today's world of ever increasing population, lateral expansion of mass dwelling is becoming costlier day by day. That leaves us with no other option but to expend vertically.

Sky scrapers have now become a necessity and the architectural marvels of some such buildings, are now the status symbols of the fast developing metros. This could have not been possible, had there not been Elevators to ease the vertical transportation.
